

oceanicTime
TM

SEA-GOD 'DeepAbyss' 5000m PROTOTYPE

By TLex SEA-GOD have revealed details and renders of a new 5000 meter prototype diver. The aptly named Sea-God "DeepAbyss" has a 48mm case. Surprisingly the crystal appears to be flat rather than a domed, which is preferred for models with a higher WR as a its shape helps to resist and redistribute pressure more evenly. Otherwise the watch looks to be a beefed up version of their regular 300m model.

By all accounts Sea-God watches are nicely made divers using modern Swiss manufacturing techniques and incorporating current materials such as; ceramic, Titanium and DLC coatings. The watches use a fairly generic looking case and dial design, which is fine. However unfortunately they have been ~~enhanced~~ embellished with more text than the 'dead sea scrolls' making them look a lot cheaper than they actually are - a pity! :(

